

From: alexander_baron@btinternet.com alexander_baron@btinternet.com
<alexander_baron@btinternet.com>

Sent: 19 November 2025 11:02

To: Faisal Muhammed <Faisal.Muhammed@sainsburys.co.uk>

Subject: Re: RE: CLAIM NO: 673MC457 - Alexander Baron v Argos Ltd

Dear Mr Muhammed,

You continue to add insult to injury. I don't know how much you have spent so far defending this indefensible claim, it must run into hundreds at least, and you have already destroyed the goodwill of a regular Argos shopper, but I will not settle for a penny less than on my writ,

Furthermore, after I win this case - and I will win it - I will shout the judgment from the rooftops, then you and your complaints department will have to explain to your board of directors and shareholders why you have acted so.

In your spurious defence you sought to blind an inexperienced lay litigant with legal jargon. Alas, I am not so inexperienced because I have litigated in both the county court and the High Court before and won. I have also acted as a McKenzie friend, reported on court cases and even done process serving.

I expect this sort of behaviour from the police and Government departments, even from the RSPCA who fought Heather Ilott over her mother's contested will, but not from one of the biggest and most reputable companies in the country. Reputable at the moment.

I will see you in court.

Yours faithfully,
A Baron